From vegetables and fruits to flowering plants and dairies, the ag industry allows all of us to buy local and buy fresh. Supporting local agriculture also means supporting the livelihoods of our neighbors. That’s simply a win-win.

A Bounty in Our Backyard

As local agriculture continues to flourish, Farm Credit East is committed to working with owners in growing their businesses. Competitive lending rates, ag-specific financial services, and a deep understanding of the challenges in your industry — that’s what we bring to the “Buy Local” movement, and we’re proud of it.

Welcome to the 2019 growing season!

CT NOFA’s Farm and Food Guide is about our nourishment, body and spirit, from Connecticut’s abundant and diverse farmland. Each spring, we pour over the entries, discovering new farms and revisiting the happy memories of old friends, barns, and fields we have fallen in love with over the years. The Farm and Food Guide is a reference, but it is also the story of our state, the story of our food, and the story of countless boots on the ground making daily contributions to the betterment of our communities. Enjoy getting to know our CT NOFA family of farmers, landscapers, members and advocates. Cultivate your own commitment to an organic Connecticut by choosing locally grown food, visiting organic restaurants, supporting artisan food and beverage makers, and practicing organic land care. Your membership makes you a vital part of the protecting our local food-shed for future generations.

All the best,

Dina Brewster
Executive Director
Northeast Organic Farming Association of Connecticut

How to Use This Guide: Refer to the County listings and Business Member section to discover the rich food landscape in Connecticut. We recommend you also use this guide to:

1. Plan your food shopping by scanning for nearby farms, grocers, bakers, artisan producers, co-ops, delivery services and more.
2. Support those who support the farmers: visit restaurants serving locally sourced and organic foods.
3. Switch to a NOFA accredited landscape professional (AOLCP) for your home or commercial property landscape
4. Plan your spring and fall gardens with seed companies, nurseries, garden centers, farmers selling transplants, and businesses that will plant and maintain your organic garden.

TIPS:
• Consider a CSA share from a farm near you.
• Plan your next agri-tourism adventure to a new farm, winery, brewery or distillery.
• Keep this guide and your reusable shopping bags in your car so you have them when you shop in new towns.
• If you lose CT NOFA’s Farm & Food Guide, check out our digital version online.

Color Key for County Section
Each section of this guide is color coded by county.

Please note: The farmers market information printed in this CT NOFA Farm and Food Guide was as current as possible at publication time. Please check with your market to confirm their information.

What is Organic Food and Why Should I Care?

With so many options for labels, and so many words like “all natural” and “sustainable” being used on food, why choose “certified organic?”

Organic certification is the only label backed by the USDA with legal definitions and independent third-party verification. A Certified Organic Farm is in compliance with the National Organic Program (NOP) standards, and has been inspected and certified by an accredited USDA certifying agent.* Products have been grown/raised without the use of synthetic fertilizers, pesticides, growth hormones, irradiation, or genetic engineering. The certification process is rigorous and requires record keeping, payment of an annual fee, and an annual on-site inspection.

But is it enough to be USDA certified? How can I learn more about where my food comes from and how it is produced?

We at CT NOFA applaud your efforts to be an awake and educated customer. Every time we buy food, we become a critical player in how the world around us takes shape. We encourage you to look beyond the label and get to know the farmers who stand behind the food you enjoy. Be loyal to Connecticut grown labels, connect with your local farmers market, join a CSA on an organic farm that is growing food for its neighbors. And recognize that, even outside of organic certification, there are farmers who are working hard on behalf of the Earth’s future. Many are “in transition” and others have created “The Farmer’s Pledge” to show their steadfast commitment to building healthy soil and socially responsible farms.

*Becoming Certified Organic: Baystate Organic Certifiers certifies many organic farms in Connecticut and Massachusetts. Visit their website or call 774-872-5544 for more information.

The CT NOFA Farmer’s Pledge program is a way for members to show their commitment to ecologically-sustainable farming, strong local economies, the humane treatment of animals, and the wise stewardship of land. The Pledge is open to CT NOFA members who attest that they adhere to the pledge and sign it annually.

The Pledge can be signed by both Certified Organic growers and growers who are using ecologically-sustainable methods. CT NOFA’s Farmer’s Pledge and the USDA Certified Organic program’s principles have much in common but the Pledge is not meant to be a substitute for certification. The USDA has a third party inspect the farm and its records are reviewed for compliance.

Of course, knowing your farmer is the best assurance that the food you buy is responsibly grown and those who sign the Pledge also agree that customers may visit their farms by appointment.

We hope you enjoy discovering new farmers through the Farmer’s Pledge program.

Look in the County Sections for Farmer’s Pledge symbol and the USDA Certified Organic seal.

The Restaurant at Winvian Farm’s Executive Chef Chris Eddy is leading a culinary revolution with his uniquely Winvian Farm seed-to-table philosophy. The freshest, most natural non-GMO ingredients are harvested daily to create exceptional seasonal menus, for a truly luxurious fine dining experience. Almost everything served in Winvian Farm’s revered restaurant is grown on our private estate in three greenhouses, and three acres of organic gardens. Honey from our apiary, a henhouse, root cellar, and luscious fruit trees round out Winvian Farm’s artfully open-ended menus. Even the dining room bouquets come from Winvian Farm’s ready flower and herb beds.

Yes! Organics can Save the World!

Our poor Earth.
Day after day, carbon dioxide gas is pumped into the air, warming up our planet and threatening our environment.

Good soil management helps promote the growth of healthy plants that absorb sunlight.
Plants then use their own chlorophyll along with carbon dioxide and water to produce -- carbohydrates!

Together, green plants and organisms in the ground protect and promote each other's health.
Best of all, this process locks the carbon into organic matter, can create humus in the soil and...
...that keeps our planet healthy!

Some of the sugars in these 'liquid' carbohydrates are 'leaked' or exuded down through the roots and, like magic, attract hungry microbes in the ground -- like bacteria and fungi.
